Re: Jane Gibson

this woman in regard to Miss Marshall's murder.

Operative then interviewed Mr. Pilger, who now conducts the New Jersey fingerprint school in room 722 of the Trenton Trust Company Building. He stated that there was nothing to the newspaper story of Nov.18th,1922 and that he found out about a friend of Miss Marshall's having lived at the Gibson woman's house, 338 South Broad St. and went to the address and saw Mrs. Gibson and told her to keep her ears open and she might hear something regarding the murder. He further stated that she came to him one time and told him what she heard, but it did not amount to anything. The belief of the police is that the Marshall girl was not murdered at all, but was struck by an automobile and then put over to the side of the road.

Respectfully submitted:
